I think you're full of SHIT, and I've been dying to tell you that for some time now, but I haven't found the right moment till now.
(Richard "Dickstock" Jones)

I must say, you are one strange, demented individual. And I mean that in the best possible way. :-) Obviously, you have no hang-ups whatsoever about acting your age; in fact, immaturity may be your best asset. Go for it -- there are far too many adults in this world!
(Katrina Lagman)

I went to your web site also. I read and looked for about 10 minutes then I got bored and moved on.

Andy Maluche's art in diverse media – from sculpture, painting, cartoon, photography, writing, design, cyberspace and perhaps, masturbation --- speak of a colorful world that addresses social issues in a language that is accessible to everyone: humor. His forms are usually bold, rounded, bright and cheerful creatures (not unlike their creator – Andy, who is also bold, rounded, bright and cheerful) seen in theatrical poses amidst common everyday situations.

His art-in-progress, daily images on the web, reflections of his various artistic concerns, editorializes and philosophizes life seen from the mind of a humorist. Maluche is one of a number of contemporary artists who use humor to convey ideas about the world and the human condition that may fall under the artistic idiom of Social Realism, a figurative representation of issues relating to the common people and to social concerns.

Like its predecessors -- public art such as murals, these works address the public rather than the art world elite. It is accessible like the street – this time we simply click on the computer.

(Ricky Sison)

I don't think you're going crazy. I think you need to go to an AA meeting asap heh heh
(Ramon Zialcita)

Been looking at your work more carefully and I must confess. . . I LOVE IT!!! I am usually not so complimentary. The photos are very distinctive and full of energy. Your paintings are also wonderful, so playful.
(Tsi Wang)

I greet and bow to thee, grand MASTER of creative party/concert photography!
(Lamma Gung)

Your artworks tell you're such a happy person and you still have such child at heart.
(Amber Wong)

Great! This is the ultimate --- why hint at greatness if you can give it to them in a blow?
(Rachel Mayo)

It's an honor, however dubious, to be linked from your site. I've been perplexed about how to tap into the high-quality demographic of walking stick afficionados, and this is indeed an answer to my prayers.

Auf dieser WebSite ist ausschliesslich dummes Zeug zu finden. Einfach genial. Besser gehts nicht. Ein echtes Meisterwerk an Spass, Spannung und auch Abenteuer, besser geht´s nicht.
